Note to Foreign Powers Like

German Foreign Office Organ
Charges U. S. Attempts at Inciting Trouble

(By The Associated Press)

In Tokyo the Japanese government told the United States and other foreign powers today that Japanese armies were planning to strike still further into the interior of China, apparently to close munitions transportation routes from British Burma and French Indo-China.

The note to neutral countries resembled others issued at the beginning of new campaigns, in all of which there have been incidents involving foreign rights.

In the Spanish war government troops pushed through hastily built lines of defense toward Fraga, on the Catalan front, to counter-balance an insurgent drive on the Ebro river front. Insurgent resistance about Fraga was described by government dispatches as weak, but later insurgent advances said the government assault had been repulsed.

On the Ebro front insurgents attempted to wipe out the last scattered resistance on the right bank of the Ebro river, the northern wedge of the insurgent forces dividing Catalonia from the rest of government Spain.

In Berlin an organ of the German foreign office today sharply attacked the United States, charging official and unofficial attempts to incite South American countries against Germany and to convince South Americans of "the evil intentions of the Fascist states."

Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz cited a radio address Sunday night by Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, and added:

"It is known that the United States will neglect nothing, especially in connection with the colonial question, to stir up a fear of Germany complex in South America."

(Welles declared the United States was prepared to join with other states of the new world in preserving the western hemisphere from "any threat of attack.")

Korrespondenz continued:

"If Americans, by calling upon their Monroe Doctrine, attempt to protect South American states, then it is their (South American) business to consider ways and means of protecting their independence and the possibilities of living in peace with other continents."

"As far as Europe is concerned it is to be hoped that this new world attempt to disturb peace will strengthen the impression of clear-thinking European peoples that every effort will be made by the United States to play nations one against the other in order to strengthen its political and economic influence in the world at the cost of blood sacrifices by others."

The French press predicted today that measures to restrict German Jewish refugees in France would evolve from the shooting here of a Nazi diplomat by a young Polish Jew.

The Paris newspapers reported that the German embassy asked that Herschel Grynszpan, 17, be extradited to Germany for trial because of his attack upon Ernst Von Rath, its secretary, occurred in the embassy building which is considered German territory.

Extradition would be most difficult, however, since French law provides against extradition for political crime.

Informed sources believed Premier Daladier would restrict German Jewish immigration in the interests of friendship with the Nazi government and his desire for a French-German understanding.

Five Oscars Vote

Lebanon, Pa., Nov. 8 (AP)—Five Oscars started off the voting today at the sixth ward polling place. The first ballots were cast by Oscar Beard, Oscar Worcester, Oscar Abraham, Oscar Bowman, and Oscar Shay.

Attempt Futile

Metropolitan Museum of Art Attendant Burned in Attempt to Save Chemist

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Frank Folsom, 48, attendant at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, was recovering in a hospital today from burns received in a futile attempt to have the life of Arthur Kopp, 38, the museum's chemist, after a chemical explosion.

Kopp's clothing caught fire when turpentine and other chemicals with which he was experimenting exploded late yesterday. Folsom dragged Kopp from the laboratory and beat out the flames, but the chemist died a few hours later.

Museum officials said automatic sprinklers extinguished the blaze before it could reach stored art treasures.

Sculptor on Trial for Murder

Robert Irwin, 30-year-old sculptor, shown (center) manacled to two guards as he entered supreme court in New York City to go on trial for the leap-frog slaying of Frank Byrnes on Easter Sunday, 1937. Irwin confessed slaying Byrnes a few hours after killing Veronica Gedeon, artist's model, and her mother.

Policeman Catches Man Who Jumps 2 Stories

Sloan, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP)—A village policeman nursed injuries today received when he thwarted a "death leap" of a man who jumped from the two-story village hall by catching him in his arms.

Patrolman Martin Molik and Walter Skierski received a phone call invitation to "watch me jump" from the village hall. Molik said when they reached the building they found Edward P. Ostichal, 25, teetering on a window ledge.

Before they could reach him from the inside, Ostichal jumped. Molik broke the fall by catching him in his arms and both men fell heavily.

Molik suffered a broken nose and injured back. Ostichal was only scratched and Skierski said he rose and tried to land a haymaker on the injured Molik.

Ostichal was arrested and arraigned on charges of assault and outraging public decency by attempting at suicide.

Five Applicants Are Successful

Tests for Position of Supervisor in City Welfare Department Taken April 30

On April 30 of this year the local civil service commission held examination for the position of case supervisor in the city welfare department. The examination had been prepared by the state civil service commission, who also rated the examination papers.

The local board has received a report of the ratings from the state department which showed that all five who took the examination for case supervisor B were successful in attaining passing marks.

Miss Catherine M. Dunegan of 140 Wall street, was the only applicant who took the examination for case supervisor A and she was successful in passing. She is holding that position at the present time with the welfare department.

She also passed the case supervisor B test.

The five who passed the test for case supervisor B in the order of their standing are:

Catherine M. Dunegan of 140 Wall street.

Ruth L. Lurie of 153 Green street.

Grace E. Connelly of 140 Fair street.

Elma F. Kullman of 60 West Pierpont street.

Margaret M. O'Meara of 110 Maiden Lane.

Buffalo Keyed Up

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP)—Buffalo, a city of more than 600,000 population which has given two presidents to the nation, cast its ballots today in an election in which it could provide two United States senators, simultaneously. To make this possibility come true, the voters of New York state would have to split their tickets—for Candidate John Lord O'Brien, 64, is a Republican, while Candidate James M. Mead, 53, is an ardent New Deal Democrat.

Abandons Holdup

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—A religious pamphlet containing the phrase, "Jesus died for you," was cited today by Robert Ziomke, 21, of Grand Island, Neb., as causing him to abandon a projected hold-up career along New York's gay white way. Police said he surrendered last night after telling a prospective holdup victim: "I got a gun. You better get a cop before I shoot someone."

R.H. Johnston Dies At Passaic; He Was In Business Here

Former Awning and Sailmaker Dies Yesterday at Age of 78 Years; Was in Business With Brother

Robert H. Johnston, 78, died on Monday at the home of his son, Leslie Johnston, in Passaic, N. J. He was a former resident of Kingston and for years was one of the foremost business leaders here. Funeral arrangements will be made later and burial will be in Montrose cemetery, this city.

Mr. Johnston was born in Kingston and received his education in the public schools of this city. When a young man he engaged in the sailmaking and awning business with his brother, the late William G. Johnston.

His death recalls the days of the Gay Nineties when steam-yachts plowed the waters of the Hudson river and the Rondout creek, and made regular trips, carrying passengers and freight between Kingston and Poughkeepsie as well as up the river as far as Saugerties and Glasco.

The Johnston brothers during the steam yacht era were the owners of the yachts Robert Main and Augustus J. Phillips, and for years these two yachts plied the Hudson river and the Rondout creek.

The Johnston brothers also engaged in the building business and erected many of the homes now standing on West Chestnut and West Chester streets.

The varied activities carried on by the Johnston brothers brought them in close touch not only with the business life of Kingston, but also along the Hudson river valley.

The awning business they established on Ferry street is still being carried on by R. Grant Johnston.

In 1907, Mr. Johnston moved to New Jersey where he engaged in the brick manufacturing business. Later he went into the building business from which he retired a few years ago.

Mr. Johnston is survived by eight children: Mrs. Harriett Adams and Miss Edith Johnston, both of Cape Cod, Massachusetts; Mrs. Henry McCain of Palisades Park, New Jersey; Mrs. Floyd W. Powell and Mrs. Walter K. Powell of this city; R. Vernon Johnston, Leslie W. Johnston and Irving McKinley Johnston, all of Passaic, N. J.; one brother George Johnston of Sedona, N. Y., and several grandchildren and one great-grandson.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—The position of the treasury November 5: Receipts $28,723,489.75; expenditures $28,015,888.57; net balance $2,581,769,608.12, including $1,971,243,251.06 working balance; customs receipts for the month $5,629,127.18. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1) $1,984,780,420.32; expenditures $1,957,339,208.80, including $1,004,495,448.23 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures $1,172,558.78.48; gross debt $38,467,606.179.97, an increase of $603,891.90 above the previous day; gold assets $14,081,203,543.41.

Chinese War Dead

Tokyo, Nov. 8 (AP)—Japan's imperial headquarters announced today that during the last four months Japanese armies had found bodies of 143,650 Chinese soldiers on China battlefields. The Japanese took only 5,270 prisoners. Japanese losses were given as 6,153 killed and wounded during the same four months—July to October inclusive.

King 'Happy to Accept' Roosevelt Invitation, He Tells Parliament

Monarch Announces He Will Visit United States
During Royal Canadian Tour Next Spring—
George VI Calls British-Italian Easter
Pact Step Toward European Peace

London, Nov. 8 (AP)—King George VI told Parliament today he had "been happy to accept" as an "expression" of Anglo-American good feeling President Roosevelt's invitation to visit the United States during the royal Canadian tour next spring.

The announcement was made by the gorgeously apparelled monarch from the throne in the House of Lords in an address opening the fourth session of the current Parliament and the second of his reign.

The king declared:

"I have been happy to accept the invitation extended to the queen and myself by the President to visit the United States of America before the conclusion of my Canadian tour."

"I welcome this practical expression of the good feeling that prevails between our countries," King George did not disclose how the North American trip would be made. There has been speculation on the possibility that the Hood, called the world's largest battle cruiser, might take him and the queen. It will be the first time a British sovereign ever set foot in a foreign colony.

An invitation to President Albert Lebrun of France to come to London next spring to repay a royal visit to Paris last July also was disclosed by the monarch.

The king viewed the British-Italian Easter friendship agreement, which is about to be brought into force, as a step in the furthering of the cause of European peace and said his government would "do all in their power to promote the development of good understanding in the spirit of the joint Anglo-German declaration made at Munich on the thirtieth of September last."

(The understanding, reached by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Chancellor Adolf Hitler, declared "the desires of our two peoples never to go to war with one another again.")

Asserting that his ministers "deeply regret the continuance of hostilities in Spain," the king said they would lend assistance in any way toward the restoration of peace in that country.

He said also Britain was ready at any time, if desired by the parties to the dispute in the Far East, to aid in reaching a settlement in the Chinese-Japanese war.

"Meanwhile my ministers will do all in their power to safeguard British interests in the areas affected," he said.

Some quarters believe the present session may be the last of this parliament, although no authoritative statement was available or when a general election would be conducted.

Chamberlain's "peace with honor" policy received what was considered a sharp setback when Mrs. Jennie Adamson, a Laborite, was elected to parliament in the normally conservative constituency of Dartford.

In a by-election she received a majority of 4,258 votes over Geoffrey Mitchell, a conservative. She said, "I won because the electors disapproved of the government's foreign policy and are ashamed of Mr. Chamberlain's betrayal of Czechoslovakia and democracy."

She referred to the four-power Munich conference September 25 on the partitioning of Czechoslovakia.

Another outbreak of wild dogs in the county seems to have broken out. Last year shortly after the summer season had closed there was a serious outbreak of wild dogs which killed stock and poultry at various points in the county. Sheriff Molyneux organized several posses and himself hunted wild dogs until the danger was passed. At that time it was believed that the dogs were abandoned by summer residents when they returned to the city in the fall. A renewal of complaints again this fall indicates that the theory as to where the dogs came from is correct.

Last year the menace became so serious the board of supervisors took the matter under consideration and contemplated county-wide action. However, the cooperation of the sheriff and his deputies in the county removed the menace and no action was voted by the board.

Early this morning it was reported from Mt. St. Alphonsus at Esopus that a pack of wild dogs had attacked the seminary pigs around 2 o'clock this morning. None of the pigs were killed in the attack, it was reported. Last year several pigs were killed on the property. Sheriff Molyneux was not informed of the attack until 8 o'clock this morning, but the dogs had disappeared. Later today he made an investigation and men will be assigned to locate the dogs and prevent a recurrence of the attack.

Illegal Registrations Under Investigation in Many Cities

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—As New York State's millions voted today, investigations of hundreds of cases of reported illegal registration were underway in many cities.

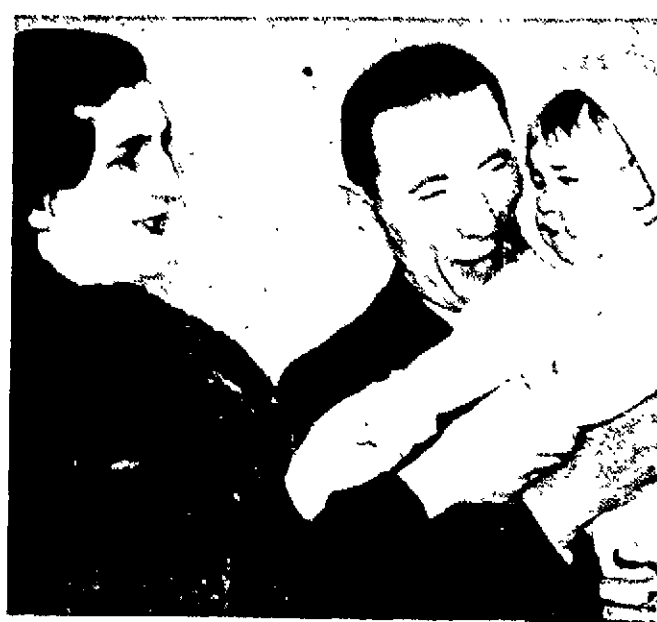

Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., said his office was collaborating with police in inquiries in Buffalo, Rochester, Utica, Syracuse, New York city, Albany and other cities.

In Manhattan alone, he said, 1,582 registrations were under police scrutiny. Warrants have been issued for 33 persons.

Bennett said that in Brooklyn, the only other New York borough in which definite reports were available, 1,295 unverified registrations had been listed.

A separate investigation was launched in Manhattan by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office into scores of alleged illegal registrations in the 4th, 5th, 6th, 15th, 17th, 18th, and 20th Assembly districts.

Real Mother Gets Baby

Ten-month-old Betty Lou Frances (above) was reunited with her mother and new step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Van De Werken, following a dispute between two childless couples at Westport, Conn., both of whom sought to adopt the little girl. To add to the dispute, there was the matter of a $91 bill for caring for the child. Betty Lou and the Van De Werken are shown shortly before they went home to New York.

Thomas Says Roosevelt Policies Are Dangerous

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for governor of New York, said last night the United States must choose between becoming a totalitarian state or a cooperative commonwealth.

In a radio address, closing his campaign, Thomas said it was futile to talk of restoring "the good old days of more or less rugged individualism," which, he added, "were not good and have come to an end."

"If we are to master modern machinery and not be mastered by it, we must have social controls. We must own, like one family, the great resources of our mineral wealth and all the commanding heights of industry and distribution."

Thomas said elections today might point the way toward retention of democracy or eventual adoption of a Fascist or Communist dictatorship.

Asserting the New Deal had failed in trying to preserve a capitalist society, he said it was now giving aid to Fascism by President Roosevelt's "dangerously inconsistent program in foreign affairs."

Dramatic Struggle Pointing to 1940 Goes on in State

Victory for Republican Choice
Thomas E. Dewey Would Put Him in Presidential Line, Embarrass FDR

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Democratic control of Franklin D. Roosevelt's home state—a matter of great significance in the 1940 presidential struggle—was at stake today in a momentous New York election.

In a state where the Republicans have not elected a governor since 1920, the people made their decision upon the effort of Thomas E. Dewey, Republican, to unseat the veteran Democratic Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, who sought a fourth term.

For Lehman, for Senator Robert F. Wagner and for his Democratic running-mate for the other senatorial post, Rep. James M. Mead, President Roosevelt had publicly and explicitly appealed.

The prospect was for a heavy vote, although the forecast was for some rain during the day in both eastern and western sections of the state. The polls were open from 6 a. m. (EST) to 6 p. m.

A victory for Dewey would put him in the company of Republican presidential possibilities, and would damage Roosevelt prestige.

Wagner, author of the Wagner Labor Act and faithful New Dealer, was opposed by John Lord O'Brien, who has been critical of many phases of the Roosevelt administration.

Mead, a New Dealer, ran against Edward Cora, a Republican who in the past has been associated with Mayor F. J. LaGuardia of New York, erstwhile insurgent Republican now a member of the American Labor party.

The standard congressional race in this state was between James H. Poy, an Rep. John J. O'Connor, the chairman of the powerful House rules committee.

In the Democratic primary, Poy, with White House support, beat O'Connor in the only instance of successful operation of the Roosevelt "purge" O'Connor, however, got the Republican nomination, and also was a candidate of the "Andrew Jackson" party.

The American Labor party, which had a hand in re-electing the Fusionist Mayor LaGuardia last year, was an important factor in the election. It had adopted the top Democratic candidates—including Lehman, Wagner and Mead—as its own designees.

Dewey campaigned principally upon the claim that "corrupt machines" furnished a backlog of votes to Democratic candidates, and however innocent they themselves might be.

The total number of eligible voters was 5,577,816.

In a total vote of nearly 5,700,000 in 1936, Lehman won over William F. Bleakley, the Republican candidate, by some 520,000.

To the Democratic accusation that he was proposing to leave his job as Manhattan district attorney after less than a year of his scheduled four-year service, Dewey replied that the Democrats were anxious to "keep me in one county" to "keep the lid on" corruption elsewhere in the state.

Bitten by Dogs

A boy and a man were bitten by dogs in this city this week, according to reports made to the police department. Mrs. B. E. Short of Main street reported Monday that her son had been bitten, and this morning Robert Wirth of 571 Broadway, reported he had been bitten in the hand by a dog. He said the wound was dressed at the Kingston Hospital.

Large Scale Fighting

Canton, Nov. 8 (AP)—Heavy artillery, rifle and machine-gun fire echoed over Canton from the north today, indicating large-scale fighting on the Southern China front had been resumed. Reports circulated widely that organized Chinese troops were approaching the outskirts of the city.

(By The Associated Press)

America's sovereign voters—40,000,000 strong—helped today to determine the New Deal's future course by choosing congressmen and state officials in a momentous "off-year" election.

The outpouring of citizens gave every indication of setting a voting record surpassed only by the 45,000,000 total of 1936.

In some regions, however, inclement weather appeared likely to lower the advance estimates. Snow blanketed many western states, and a cold rainstorm was moving over the east.

The major offices at stake were 35 seats in the U. S. House of Representatives, and 132 House seats. Only in Maine, which elected a Republican governor and three representatives in September, was no vote being cast.

In the bulk of the congressional contests the question of support or opposition to Roosevelt policies predominated.

The President himself appealed last Friday for election of men who would favor "liberal" proposals. Republicans, with an eye on 1940, criticized the national administration and many of its works and called for election of candidates advocating a "return to the American way."

The opening of the polls—at daybreak in some states—put an end to the campaign speechmaking. Many government officials and virtually all members of congress were back in their home bailiwicks to vote.

President Roosevelt was in Hyde Park, N. Y., where he sealed in an envelope his own forecast of the outcome. Vice President Garner, the silent man of this year's campaign, was at home in Uvalde, Texas.

In several states where contests have been especially grueling, tension was at a high point. In Pennsylvania hundreds of special guards were on duty at the polls. Evictionmen ran high in Michigan and New York because of the hot gubernatorial races. The old age pension issue was a focal point of interest in California.

In contrast to those were the southern states, where election of Democratic tickets was in most instances a mere formality.

James A. Farley, the Democratic leader, predicted in a radio speech "President Roosevelt will be endorsed again" through the election of candidates he favors.

The minority party hopes to make tomorrow's events a curtain-raiser to the 1940 election, Farley said. "Take my word for it that it will be the kind of curtain-raiser not at all to their liking."

Republican Chairman John Hamilton, reiterating claims of party gains, announced he had telegraphed Republican state chairmen to have "all party workers and candidates keep close watch for evidence of coercion of relief beneficiaries, pressure on all available evidence for submission to the congressional investigating committee and possible grand jury action."

In a national broadcast last night, Hamilton introduced as the closing Republican speaker the onetime "Big Train" of baseball, Walter Johnson, who is a candidate for county commissioner in Maryland. Johnson, extolling "American way of life," said:

"There were 11,000,000 men and women out of work in 1932 and we still have that many today and no signs of any permanent break on the horizon yet. I am mighty sure that's not American."

Specific claims of victory by opposing party leaders varied widely. Senator Brown (D., Mich.), chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, said he was convinced there was no recession in Democratic strength.

"We now hold 32 of the 35 contested senate seats," he added. "It is entirely possible, indeed I deem it likely, that we may gain."

In All Districts

Voting Machines Will Be Used for First Time in Every State Election District

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Voting machines will be used for the first time today to record ballots in all New York state election districts.

The machines, in common use for years in the metropolitan area but less widely employed in rural upstate districts, are expected to speed computing of election returns. The polls are open from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Each voter is allowed three minutes. The ballot is cast automatically as the departing voter moves aside the curtain screen the booth.

Heavy Vote Cast At Early Hour Here

A heavy vote was cast in Kingston during the early hours of the day today after the polls had opened at 6 o'clock, but no disorder marked the polling of the vote. The polls close at 6 o'clock this evening.

As voting machines were used in Kingston and in the election districts throughout the county, it was expected that the results of the vote would be obtained early.

The postoffice department reports that 100,000 letters were mailed last year without address.

ACCORD

Accord, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Wynkoop substituted in the primary room of Accord School on Thursday in the absence of Miss Rhinehart, who was ill.

More than a hundred people enjoyed the moving pictures presented by Howard Sykes in the reformed Church auditorium on Thursday evening, November 3, under the auspices of the Men's Club. Mr. Sykes introduced his pictures, "Big Game Hunting in East Africa" with a short talk, giving the audience an idea of the preparation necessary before making the trip to East Africa, which was made entirely by plane from London to Nairobi.

Mr. Sykes was accompanied by his wife and two sons, who are 14 and 16 years of age, respectively. The 14 year old son is the youngest boy to receive a hunting license from the British government. The pictures, in color, and shot for the most part by the Sykes boys, gave a very vivid idea of the animals of the jungle, their habits and their food. Many of the animals seen in the pictures are now mounted and form part of an exceptional collection which the Sykes have housed in a large game house recently erected on their farm at Accord.

The post office will be open on Friday, November 1, Armistice Day, 7:15 a. m. to 10 a. m. There will be no rural delivery on that day.

Wallace Lawrence is confined to the Honoring Hospital where he underwent an operation for appendicitis on Saturday, November 3.

Mrs. John Schoonmaker is confined to the Kingston Hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis on Tuesday, November 1.

The Mother's Club of Accord will hold a card party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Davenport on Wednesday evening, November 16, to provide funds to serve hot cocoa to the Accord grade school pupils during the winter months.

Miss Nellie Davenport has returned to her classes in Kingston High School after recuperating from pneumonia. Miss Anna Schoonmaker spent the weekend at her home.

Mrs. Vincent Lawrence is visiting relatives in Westfield, Pa. Mrs. Franklin Kelder and daughter have returned to their home in Mettachants from the Kingston Hospital.

Miss Kathryn Gazlay is confined to her home with an infected throat.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rider of Kyserville entertained at a birthday dinner on Sunday for Cleveland Rider, Mrs. Ida Rider, Miss Daisy Rider, Miss Elma Benton and Mr. and Mrs. Osterhoudt helped to make the occasion a merry one. Mrs. Ida Rider, the oldest guest in the party, did more than her share to add to the merriment.

Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Osterhoudt have been spending several days visiting friends in the Rondout valley.

Licenses for Cats

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 4 (AP)—The New York State Conference of Mayors said yesterday a survey showed that Mount Vernon is the only municipality in New York state and one of seven cities in the nation which license cats. The Mount Vernon cat-licensing ordinance, the conference reported, deems a cat without a license a "vagrant" and may be seized and impounded.

250 Attend City Hair Style Show

About 250 people attended the Hair Style and Fashion Show sponsored by the Robert Harper Method Beauty Salon at the Governor Clinton Hotel last night.

All the latest "hairstyles" for milady were shown as executed by the staff of Robert Harper Method Hairdressers, Mr. Andre, Mrs. Genevieve Whitmore, Mrs. Florence Schick and Mrs. Marabell. The ultimates in fall fashions in gowns were shown by Gold's Reliable Shop and the season's favorites in hats were displayed by the Paris Millinery.

Paul Zuercher's orchestra furnished music for the show and Mr. Zuercher acted as master of ceremonies describing the gowns, hats and hairstyles of the following young ladies who served as models: Miss Ruth Burhan, Mrs. Huder, Miss Hilde Winne, Miss Hearty, Miss Felle, Miss Stricker, Miss Rachel Conlin, Miss Josephine Veech, Miss Eulah Barley, Miss Hafferty, Miss Jennings, Miss Brogan, Miss Dorothy Moore, Miss Johnson, Miss Janet Evans, Miss Genevieve Hoagland, Miss June Marabell and Miss McCarty.

The grand finale to the show, which was held in the Crystal Room of the Governor Clinton, was a bridal scene with Miss Dorothy Moore as the bride and Miss Brogan as her attendant showing what the well dressed young brides and attendants will be wearing in this season's weddings.

Mind Your P's and Q's

When we say "Mind your P's and Q's," we mean we must be careful—especially of what we say. But in former days it wasn't used that way. It had another meaning, says a correspondent in Pearson's London Weekly.

The generally accepted explanation of the phrase is that it came from the luncheon of olden days who displayed his customer's accounts on slate. For point he entered "P" and for quart "Q." Naturally, a heavy drinker would very soon have a succession of "P's" or "Q's" (or both) to his "credit," and the landlord's warning would very probably be "Mind your P's and Q's."

Another explanation attributed to this phrase is that it originated in the composing room of the printing office. In the small letters of type, known as lower case, the "p" and "q" can very easily be mistaken for each other; and in the days before machinery—when hand-setting was the only method in use among printers, there was a real danger that the wrong letter would be inserted. Hence the overseer's cautionary "Mind your P's and Q's."

First Canadian Settlement

Following the discoveries of John and Sebastian Cabot and Jacques Cartier, attempts were made during the sixteenth century to found colonies in what is now Canada, but the first permanent settlement was not made until 1605. Pierre du Gast, Sieur de Monts left Havre de Grace, France, in April, 1604, for Acadia, which is now Nova Scotia. Samuel Champlain, the great explorer, was with him and the first place they selected for a settlement was an island at the mouth of the St. Croix river. This was a failure and in the following year they planted a colony at Port Royal (now Annapolis, Nova Scotia). In the summer of 1608 Champlain sailed up the St. Lawrence and founded the city of Quebec on July 3. Champlain was a native of Brouage, on the Bay of Biscay, in southern France, and was the son of a sea captain. The early settlers of Canada were, of course, French.

The term "dog days" for late summer, originated in the belief dogs were especially liable to mad at that time, though actually fewer go mad in summer than in any other season.

1 cup milk
2 eggs yolks

1 tablespoon fat
1/2 melted
1/2 paprika
1/2 teaspoon white pepper
2 egg whites, beaten

Lightly mix the ingredients. Drop from a tablespoon into deep hot fat. Fry for three minutes or until fritters are a golden color. Drain and serve immediately.

Cottage Cheese Salad Dressing
(For fruit or vegetable salads)
1/2 cup salad dressing
1 tablespoon French dressing
1 teaspoon cheese

Mix ingredients with a fork. Chill and serve.

There are about twenty tuna-fish canneries in the United States. Most tuna canned by them comes from Mexico and Central America. Last year, however, a tuna run occurred off the coast of Oregon. This year runs have been reported off the coast of Maine and Massachusetts.

Two Still at Hospital
Rose Searcull, 24, of Glasco, injured 10 days ago in a motor car crash on the Saugerties road, Philadelphia, Pa., and her sister, Carmella, 23, both of Malden, were still at the Kingston Hospital today, where their conditions were reported as fairly good. The three young women were all seriously injured. Thomas H. Sherman of South Cairo was killed.

May Get Flying Fish
Cranberry Lake, N. Y. (AP)—Anglers may be catching "flying fish" in these parts next year. When the Cranberry Boat Club undertook to stock mountain ponds in the vicinity with fingerling trout, it hired an airplane to do the job. The pilot, with a cargo of fingerlings aboard, dropped the fish as he swooped low over the water.

Science Set to Help Fishermen

Cast Bountiful Net of Research to Gather Useful Statistics.

WASHINGTON—Science has cast a net of research into the north Atlantic, and has brought aid to fog-shrouded fishing banks where for three centuries fishermen of many nations have struggled for a livelihood.

After the improvements in ship motors, refrigeration, packing and marketing methods turned the tide of adversity that had beset New England fisheries in early stages of depression, the United States bureau of fisheries turned its attention to measures of conservation which promise to give permanence to the fish supply of the north Atlantic and promote its economical exploitation.

Most extraordinary development, however, is the project of the bureau to determine the abundance of many species of New England groundfish. This ultimately may enable a scientific system of forecasting for the annual fishermen's catch comparable to the forecasts made by the department of agriculture for farm products but far more difficult due to many variable factors.

Sixty Different Varieties.

The various scientific programs promise ultimately to have great international importance, since the north Atlantic fisheries long have been one of the world's most valuable sources of food supply.

Although the fishing on the New England banks is largely controlled by American vessels, due to the tariff-free entry of fish caught by American vessels, large numbers of Portuguese, Italians and other nationalities are engaged. With new motorized vessels, the range of the fishermen has been extended to the Nova Scotia banks, once occupied chiefly by Canadians. Beyond are the Grand Banks, visited by Canadian and French fishermen and the larger American vessels.

Modern statistical methods for counting the fish in the sea are being employed in a study of the abundance of nearly a dozen species of New England groundfish, according to Acting Commissioner of Fisheries Charles E. Jackson.

In addition to New England's "sacred codfish" on which the haddock industry was founded, haddock, pollock, hake, cusk, wolfish, rosefish and the various flat fishes are being included in the survey being launched by the bureau.

Potential Supplies Sought.

By an elaborate statistical analysis of the catches made by vessels fishing the offshore banks, the bureau's scientific staff expects to discover the potential supplies of each important food fish studied.

Bottom feeding fish or groundfish made up more than half the catch of New England fishermen or some 380,000,000 pounds. As recently as 1929 haddock made up two-thirds of the catch by trawling vessels. Last year, however, owing chiefly to the recent phenomenal increase in the use of rosefish and whiting, haddock formed only a third of the groundfish catch.

By modern processing methods, six or eight species besides haddock and cod are now prepared for market as boneless filets, according to Jackson. This fact, together with the lack of sufficient haddock to supply the increasing market for packaged fish has resulted in increased catches of species formerly neglected by the trawlers.

Local Death Record

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon for Mrs. Alameda Weeks, widow of Nelson Weeks, at her home, 121 Franklin street, where she died Friday evening after a long illness. Elder Townsend of the Seventh Day Adventist Church of which Mrs. Weeks was a member, officiated. The services were largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends. Burial was in the Shandaken Rural Cemetery.

Ernest Van Tassel died from heart trouble at his home at Malden on Sunday. Deceased was a son of the late Elijah Van Tassel and is survived by one sister, Mrs. Ellsworth Sulzma. Mr. Van Tassel was a much respected citizen of Malden and his death will be learned with regret. The funeral services will be held at his late home Thursday at 2 p. m. Burial in Mountain View cemetery, Saugerties.

The funeral of Lloyd Snyder of Rosendale, who died Thursday, was held at the Rosendale Reformed Church Sunday at 2 o'clock and was largely attended. The Rev. Albert Shultis, pastor of the church, conducted the services. During the services Abide With Me and The Old Rugged Cross were sung. The bearers were Charles Kelly, Silas B. Roosa, James Fahey, Henry Tassell, Henry Myers and Clifton Van Ostrand. Burial was in Rosendale Reformed Cemetery where the Rev. Mr. Shultis conducted the committal service at the grave.

Isaac Forster died early this morning at his home, 169 Hurley avenue. Mr. Forster had been a resident of Ulster county all his life and for 15 years had resided in Kingston, where he was engaged in the contracting and building business. He is survived by his wife, Susie C. Forster; three daughters, Mrs. Russell Krom of Marlborough, Mrs. F. V. McSpirt of Kingston; four sons, John F. of Walden, Isaac Jr., of St. Johnsville, James H., of the St. Johnsville, and Wilfred Forster of Kingston. Also nine grandchildren, one sister, Mrs. Jane Hasbrouck of Liberty, and one brother, Armstrong Foster of Woodbourne. Several nieces and nephews also survive. Body may be viewed at any time at W. N. E. P. Saver Found Dead Yesterday

Edwin P. Saver, brother of Helen Saver Bush, wife of Dr. William S. Bush of Kingston, was found dead at the door of his home in Brooklyn yesterday. In his hand was a key which he evidently was about to use in opening the door. How long he had been dead was hard to determine, but it was presumed he succumbed to a heart attack the night before. Plans for the funeral were not announced. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery sometime on Thursday. Surviving, besides Mrs. Bush, are his mother, Mrs. Juliette Saver, widow of John J. Saver, and three brothers, John, Harold and James Saver, also two other sisters, Mrs. Charles M. Ford and Mrs. Charles J. Bray.

Fireman Is Killed

Charlestown, Mass., Nov. 4 (AP)—Unable to assign a cause for a collision between a freight and a passenger train which cost the life of a fireman and bruised 12 passengers last night, Boston and Maine Railroad officials today ordered an investigation. The fireman was C. D. Russell, 45, of Stillwater, N. Y., crushed between the boiler of the passenger locomotive and the tender. The engineer, H. F. Wood, of Troy, N. Y., leaped to safety.

HOME BUREAU

Flatbush
Care of the hands was the lesson given to the Flatbush Home Bureau unit on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Alvin Palen. Mrs. Harold Osterhoudt was the leader and she told the members of the unit, weekly and monthly care that would be given the hands in order to give them a well groomed appearance. The fundamentals are cleanliness, protection, conditioning and making up. Mrs. Osterhoudt demonstrated a type of hand mask which, if used once a month, would do much to relax the hands and make them flexible. Massaging and hand exercises are also very beneficial.

PUBLIC JITTERS

We Americans think we're pretty level-headed and self-controlled—and then along comes something like Orson Welles' radio invasion from Mars and shows how jittery we are. Maybe that young rascal deserves a vote of thanks, rather than a spanking, for tipping the nation off to its own emotional instability. We shall be more on guard from now on. At least we hope so. Psychologists and psychiatrists are not so sure about that.

One of the leading American experts on abnormal psychology is very serious about the mental state of the American public, as revealed by this sudden panic. We had been "conditioned" for it, he says, by the recent war scare in Europe, the horrors of Spain and China, the New England hurricane, the long strain of business depression and other forms of disaster and danger. The whole civilized world, he believes, is afflicted by a psychosis of fear, and has become so imaginative and jumpy that almost any kind of public scare can induce a general scare out of all proportion to the cause.

Moreover, he adds, the radio, with its instantaneous and world-wide reach, is the most effective and perilous means of setting off such a panic. For this reason, he emphasizes the importance of continuous and responsible control.

It is so important to safeguard this medium of communication against such misuse, whether intentional or unintentional, he says, that the first and most necessary step in case of real war peril would be for the government to take over radio control. Otherwise an irresponsible meddler "could start a world-wide panic in ten seconds."

SAFER DRIVING

At last the automobile fatality curve has turned sharply downward. And it has happened rather suddenly. Figures show that in the ten months ending last August the fatalities were almost 6,000 less than for the same month the year before. This is a gain of 20 per cent.

The most reassuring thing about it is the rather steady sinking of the death curve, or mounting of the safety curve, during the months referred to. Starting in November of last year with a saving of 300 lives in comparison with the previous record, the gain rose to 560 in March, 780 in May, 800 in July and 860 in August. It is reasonable to believe that continued gains have been made in September and October, resulting in a saving of at least 7,000 lives for the twelve months.

That gain can be visualized by looking at a town of 7,000 people and considering what a terrible catastrophe it would be if they were all wiped out. The American public has virtually given life to that many men, women and children in one year by not killing them as usual.

How has this wonderful gain been made? By driving more carefully; by making better cars and better roads; by keeping the cars in better condition; by nearly everybody, including pedestrians, being more cautious.

With the impetus and confidence gained by this achievement, the nation should be able to make as much additional gain next year.

DIGGING FOR SHAKESPEARE

England must be pretty well dug up the zeal of American researchers. We should think the present generation over there would resent having their country treated as if it were just archeology. But the English are a patient race of people, surprisingly indulgent with our enthusiasts in search of fame and material for college theses.

That old Shakespeare-Bacon argument seems to be still as good an excuse as any for our eager-eyed cranks and their spade-work. It is incredible that British custodians should ever have let such an outfit dig in the sacred precincts of Westminster Abbey for evidence to support their weird literary theories. Britons themselves have long refused to get excited about the Shakespeare-Bacon controversy, holding that if Shakespeare didn't write his own works, it must have been done by some other fellow of the same name, looks, character and origin.

But these New World explorers can't be discouraged. One of them, after a couple of years' intensive research, recently revealed to an awe-struck world that the old Globe theatre in London actually stood several yards from its traditional location—and he got a fine doctor's thesis out of it.

This last enterprise, digging up the coffin of the poet Spenser, on the theory that it would contain manuscripts proving that Bacon wrote Shakespeare after office hours, seems to have been abandoned because they found a coffin that was too long for a short poet to be buried in.

There may be no other recourse now than to go back to the Stratford church where Shakespeare was buried, pry up the floor slab which begs them to let the bard's bones rest in peace, and insist on knowing what his ghost thinks about it.

"The perfect vocation," says President Palmer of the Chicago Theological Seminary, "is the kind a person would enjoy so much that he would be willing to pay for the privilege of doing it." Better be careful, or employers will start collecting from employees who say they love their work.

"It is too much to expect young singers to resist the blandishments of the movies and the radio," says Geraldine Farrar. And it is too much to expect movie and radio patrons to resist the blandishments of young singers.

There has been news lately of one man shot for a deer and another for a groundhog, and since that "War of the Worlds" broadcast, we may hear any day of hunters in the woods being shot for Martians.

Generally speaking, we prefer English to French, but is "hair-do" really an improvement on "coiffure"? Of course, the new style might be called hair-raising.

"When is a woman's hat not a hat?" somebody wants to know. After considerable research, we report as follows: "When it covers only one eye."

TREATMENT FOR ARTHRITIS

Despite our knowledge of preventing rheumatism—arthritis—by removing infection from teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gall bladder, together with proper rest, diet, and exercise, there are many cases which become chronic before infection has been removed. The infection in joints has caused changes that often cannot be repaired or corrected and the patient is afflicted with stiffness, pain, and some degree of deformity.

In speaking of these cases of chronic arthritis, Dr. Robert T. Phillips, Boston, in the New England Journal of Medicine, tells of the help that can be given by physical medicine or treatment—rest, exercise, massage, and electricity.

Dr. Phillips points out that rest is needed by chronic arthritis because of the long drain on their nervous and physical energy caused by the infection. The suggestion is an hour's rest after meals. Two positions are taken. For the first thirty minutes the patient lies on his back, stretched well out, a pillow under lower back, and the knees bent not under the head. For the second thirty minutes he turns face down, supported by a pillow placed crosswise under his abdomen.

In regard to exercise, arthritis must not allow joints to remain in a bent position. No matter what the degree of arthritis, the patient can carry out some exercise—lying, standing, sitting, walking—to move his joints and strengthen his muscles.

In regard to heat Dr. Phillips suggests the use of hot water applications by means of some woolen material covered with a towel or blanket to hold in the heat.

The massage is done by the use of long, smooth strokes in a direction toward the heart as it is the return circulation of the blood that needs help. If pain is present, massage should be gentle. Heat should be applied before or during the massage. Many physicians advise application of heat, then massage, and then more heat following the massage.

In regard to electricity it is unfortunate that physicians do not give more attention to acquiring the knowledge of the proper methods of using electricity in the treatment of chronic arthritis as it gives excellent results in skillful hands. When proper treatment by electricity is not available, the use of the other physical forms of treatment—rest, heat, exercise, and massage—faithfully carried out will give satisfactory results.

Chapter Four

A Scream And A Faint

ADAM DREW'S eyes were very friendly. He smiled across me at Elizabeth.

"This is the best idea of the year," he dropped his voice and turned to me. "It's like finding a cool stream in the desert."

"Why, Adam, you're a poet!" He laughed and his thin skin grew a little pink. "I must have read it somewhere."

He looked remarkably boyish and alive. He was older than the other bachelors, but his face was unlined and merry.

"Seriously, it has been pretty deadly here this summer, hasn't it, Elizabeth?"

She smiled faintly. "I'm afraid I haven't noticed, and I must confess I was not thinking of you when I invited Katherine."

"That's true enough," Charlie admitted. "But the smart place to keep it is behind the seat; right here, see? That's where mine rides—my forty-five, that is. This thing's just a toy—thirty-two, isn't it?"

"It's easier to handle and equaly dangerous if you can shoot. I can, of course," she said matter-of-factly.

Again I say there's no explaining Elizabeth. An hour before I had placed her in the mauve decade. Now I was not so sure.

They talked firearms for a while and I was glad of a chance to sort my thoughts. Should I make an opportunity now to have it out with Charlie about Anne, or should I let events take their course and see how he behaved tonight? After all, I could have been mistaken.

I was inclining toward the line of least resistance, though as a rule I like to get unpleasant things over in a hurry, when a sharp, involuntary "Oh!" repeated from a half-dozen throats drew my attention to the game, which had been resumed.

"He's Killed!"

A CROSS the field a horse was down. Its heels thrashed wildly for a moment before it could get up. But the man lay still. Voices babbled. Somebody shrieked, "He's killed! He's killed!" Elizabeth said evenly, "Barney ran into him full tilt."

Charlie spilled out of the car and stood there clinging to it, gray around the mouth.

"It's Adam," he said as if he were praying. "And he's so brittle."

Barney had dismounted and picked Adam up in his arms as easily as he would a child. He stood looking wildly around, then turned and headed straight for us with his awkward burden.

I was on my feet outside the car without knowing how I got there. Charlie had gone loping across the field to meet them.

Suddenly a silent scream started somewhere down near my toes and I climbed like an elevator. Swelling as it rose, and all the time I wasn't making a sound—I wouldn't make a sound—I'd die first.

I saw Elizabeth standing on the other side of the car, turning back the cuffs of her linen dress. I didn't know why she did that—probably she wouldn't have known either; but it impressed me horribly. It was the last thing I saw, for the nightmare scream suddenly filled my whole consciousness and annihilated everything else.

I've never been so ashamed. They had taken the seat cushion out of Elizabeth's car and I was lying on that when I came to. That was another thing nobody could remember about—later. Anyone might have taken the thirty-two; were all there, milling around.

I was more annoyed than relieved to recognize Adam's face above mine. He was pale and ludicrously concerned, but very much alive. I broke all records getting on my feet, and I wouldn't let anyone help me.

"Never mind," said Adam consolingly, putting a friendly hand under my elbow. "You weren't half the spectacle I was. Imagine coming to about six feet in the air in the grip of a maniac who wouldn't let go because you were supposed to be dying. I kicked for all I was worth, with the result that when he finally let me down I was most ingloriously and publicly sick. At least you missed that."

Courage Is Needed
 Skepticism is being expressed in many quarters as to whether the anti-monopoly investigators at Washington will have the courage to take up the subject of the alleged collusion between labor and the construction industry, with reference to wages and price policies.

A few days ago we saw in a city paper a paragraph which we think ought to be carved on stone and set up in every executive office in big business in this country and in every union labor meeting place. It was this, "Business and labor are on the same limb. If either of them saws off the limb both will fall."

A LITTLE LATE NOW.—BUT HOW ABOUT THIS IDEA FOR THE NEXT CAMPAIGN?

WASHINGTON—A back-stage analysis of the arrangement by which the public utilities are to get something near two billion dollars of government money in the next two years discloses that national defense is far from the sole purpose of the outlay, although an important one.

At various times during the depression "low" it was estimated that if the utilities could get credit they would start a building boom of their own by putting up new transmission and distribution lines and installing new generating equipment.

Utilities Had A Slump
 BECAUSE of the bad odor surrounding utilities investments due to the Insull debacle and a mass of adverse publicity connected with TVA and the Utility Holding Company act, utilities have not been able to get adequate credit.

For years the utilities have fallen behind in their spending for expansion and betterment. Just how long and how much is speculative, but a competent government source has compiled figures indicating these things:

Normal annual spending by the utilities in the mid 'twenties' for plant betterment and expansion was about $500,000,000 a year.

From 1928 through 1933 the utilities speeded up expansion, at times pouring out $700,000,000 a year.

This was above the average requirement and left the industry perhaps "overbuilt" so that during the next two or three years the utilities had to spend only $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 a year for plant betterment in order to keep even.

A Government Build-Up

BY 1936 the demand for power had about caught up with the expansion but instead of resuming the half billion dollar average, the companies could take up only $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 a year.

Special note: It will be well to watch if the "needs of national defense" do not arise to justify a large loan to railroads for equipment—as a means also of easing the present wage controversy.

Then, If Trouble Comes

THE money will be used to install new generating equipment in private plants. It also will build inter-connecting units between industrial zones, so that if one source of power is cut off (perhaps by bombs or sabotage), an important industrial link can be kept going with power from another zone.

Equally important, it will give power companies the money they have been unable to get elsewhere for the very sort of plant expansion they would have carried on if public confidence had not been jarred.

Special note: It will be well to watch if the "needs of national defense" do not arise to justify a large loan to railroads for equipment—as a means also of easing the present wage controversy.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 64—South America

From the largest and fastest steamboat on the Hudson river during her time, to a common hay-carrying barge—that is the story of the "South America," whose wooden hull was built in 1840 at Brooklyn by Divine Butts. She was powered by an engine built by James Cunningham of New York.

The dimensions of the "South America" lists her as 260 feet long, 26 foot three inch breadth of beam, 638 tons and a vertical beam engine with a cylinder diameter measuring 54 inches with an 11 foot stroke.

The "South America" was built for Isaac Newton and others, and was the largest and fastest steamboat on the Hudson river during the period directly following 1840. Her 638 tonnage rating exceeded other vessels on the river although some of them were later rebuilt and nearly equalled the size of the new vessel.

The "South America" was built for speed and she proved very satisfactory, holding the record for fast service on the New York and Albany route for a number of years. She holds the distinction of being the first vessel to cover the distance between these two cities at a speed of 20 miles per hour or over, and in 1841 she made the entire run in seven hours and 28 minutes, for the People's Line.

About the year 1850, the "South America" retired from the People's Line service and was sold to the Hudson River Line, running on the Hudson-New York route until about 1863, when she was dismantled at Athens.

Sundown Stories

By Mary Graham Bonner

The Bonfires

THERE was a great deal of whispering around Puddle Muddle. The little gnome-like man Willy Nilly was as excited as he could be.

"You mustn't forget," he whispered to Rip, the dog, "that now is the time when we have all our birthday celebrations."

"The ducks have gone down to their pond and are busy there and have forgotten about their birthdays."

"Shall I call them?" barked Rip. "Please do," said Willy Nilly.

"Mrs. Quacko, Mr. Quacko, Quackles, Yellow Back and all the other ducks," barked Rip. "Willy Nilly is expecting you to come to his house this evening as the sun goes down."

"Dear me," quacked Mrs. Quacko with her wings all a flutter. "What is happening now?"

"Nothing is happening now," barkingly answered Rip. "But no one ever knows when something is going to happen."

"That's so," quackingly agreed the ducks.

As a red sun was slowly sinking in the west back of Puddle Muddle, Mr. and Mrs. Quacko and the other ducks waddled up toward Willy Nilly's house.

And no sooner had they spoken to Willy Nilly than all the piles of leaves were ablaze with color and fire.

"You came at just the right moment," said Willy Nilly. "The lighted bonfires are in your honor. We're celebrating the birthdays of all the ducks."

And the ducks quacked with joy as they received presents of grain and knew that the great autumn bonfires were for their celebration.

Tomorrow—"Food, Food, Food."

KRIPPLEBUSH

Kripplebush, Nov. 7.—The Halloween party was a financial success and greatly enjoyed by those who attended. The costumes were both humorous and original.

The Ladies Aid meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Leroy Osterhout Wednesday afternoon. Virginia and Jean Christiansa spent Saturday afternoon and evening with Mr. and Mrs. Japhet Christiansa of Rose Hill.

Fred Lyons of Ellenville called on Mrs. Minnie Smith and family on Friday.

Mrs. Cornelia Barley is spending some time with friends in this place.

The Rev. F. G. Baker called on Mr. and Mrs. Claude Christiansa and family Thursday afternoon. Claude Christiansa is able to be around the house after a severe attack of sinus trouble for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Davis spent Thursday evening with Mrs. Lottie M. Roosa.

Jack Moggonsky is able to be out again after a severe attack of sinus trouble.

An ancient library of 10,000 clay documents has been uncovered in Nineveh.

was built at Athens for the Hudson-New York Night Line. The "Berkshire," powered by the "South America" engine, was destroyed by fire on June 8, 1864, when a considerable number of people went to their death in the sinking inferno of one of the finest steamboats on the river.

Mrs. Dunbar Addresses Sorosis

Sorosis held its regular weekly meeting Monday at the home of Mrs. Conrad J. Heiselman on West Chestnut street. The topic for the evening, given by Mrs. Henry F. Dunbar, was "Sculpture and the Human Figure." Models in bronze and plaster made by the speaker Mrs. Dunbar not only told of the techniques involved in modeling, but also explained materials and methods in modeling, molding and casting. Her description of casting in bronze by means of sand was particularly interesting. She closed a lively question and answer period with a tribute to the men now working in Woodstock. During the opening session of business, announcement was made of the meeting of the Women's Field Army for the Control of Cancer at the Stuyvesant Hotel on Wednesday. At the close of the meeting tea was served. Mrs. Theron L. Culver, assisting the hostess. Next week Mrs. Howard A. Lewis will be hostess to the club.

Saugerties Couple Wed

In the presence of a large number of guests, many from out of town, Miss Stella J. Athans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Athans of Elm street, on Sunday afternoon became the bride of Charles Zoumense, one of the proprietors of Candyland on Main street, Saugerties. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Basil P. Vryniotis of the Greek Orthodox Church, Poughkeepsie, at 4 o'clock in Mechanics Hall on Livingston street, Saugerties. The hall was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers and foliage, ferns and palms. The attendants were Thomas Tomadakis of New York city as groomsmen and Miss Frances Athans, sister of the bride, as maid of honor. The bride was most attractively attired in a gown of Bengaline silk, with train two yards in length, and also wore a veil, ornamented with orange blossoms, on head and tip of veil. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was prettily dressed in an old fashion gown of powder blue, with hoop skirt, and also carried an old fashion bouquet. After the ceremony a reception was held and congratulations extended to the bridal couple. Dancing was enjoyed, the music being furnished by an orchestra from New York city. A sumptuous repast was also served. Mr. and Mrs. Zoumense received numerous gifts, both beautiful and practical. They left for a honeymoon trip of three weeks to be spent in the South. Upon their return they will reside in the Jaffa apartments on Main street.

Easy to Get Culture at Home.

Unhappy and embarrassed, Nell, because you can't answer Ted's quiz, share his enthusiasm?

"I never had chance to finish school!" he exclaims in a world where there are so many ways of learning—libraries, newspapers, radio, movies.

Ted saw "If I were King" in the movies—and his curiosity about the vagabond poet, Francis Villon, led him to the library to read about Villon's romantic life, to dip into the works of other great figures of literature.

Of course it was silly of Nell to confuse the Rose Bowl—the big football stadium in California—with the Dust Bowl, that part of the Great Plains afflicted by drought.

When Ted read about the Dust Bowl in the papers, his "I wonder" spirit set him studying the dramatic history of the Great Plains, about Indians, cowboys, barbed wire—and wheat.

Let your own "I wonder" spirit guide you to an education. Our 32-page booklet gives you a plan for familiarizing yourself with history, the sciences, philosophy, literature, biography, the arts. Book lists recommended by Committee on College Reading.

A short business meeting was held, followed by refreshments arranged by Mrs. I. Baldwin, Mrs. Clark Neher and Mrs. H. L. Todd.

Several committee reports were given, pointing out that the school trustees have obtained playground equipment for the lower grades, that Dr. George Bassow, health officer, is arranging for a diphtheria clinic here and can depend on Parent-Teacher Association assistance, that Mrs. Quick has postponed the musical the organization has planned for the school children.

The P. T. A. offered a third prize for the poster contest being held for book week in the Woodstock school.

A committee was appointed to consult with the Historical Society concerning a program of Christmas carol singing to be given throughout the town by school children, touring the town in trucks and cars. Mrs. Conn and Mrs. Quick were appointed to be assisted by Mrs. Clark Neher and Mrs. Joseph Fitzsimmons.

Last year the historical society sponsored a group of children singing the carols, and this year it is planned to combine the efforts of the two organizations to make a larger group.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on December 10.

Sammy—Pa, what is a necessity?—Something you have on credit because you've spent all your money for luxuries.

Lone burglar complains it is difficult to find an honest partner.

Teacher—Johnny tell me how many bones in your body.
Johnny—I expect about 40,000.
Teacher—Why, Johnny, that's impossible.
Johnny—Oh, no, it isn't. I ate cardines for lunch.

If you care to know, the use of the hide of a cow is to cover the cow.

Embryo Author—I'm just itching to write.
Scenario Editor—Well, who don't you sit down and scratch off something?

A woman too occupied to feed her husband will walk six miles for dog food.

Illness kept Sammy away from history class. When he returned the teacher said:

"You have a lot of work to make up now, Tommy. How long have you been absent?"
"Since the French Revolution," he replied.

Head It Or Not—According to population, Munich, Ind., has fewer dogs than any other city in the United States.

Bookkeeper—I'll have to have a raise, sir, there are three other companies after me.

Boss—Is that so? What companies?
Bookkeeper—Light, 'phone and water.

Woman has better business sense than man. When her business is to catch a man who doesn't sit around cussing the President, but spends half her time in beauty parlors and the other half where eligible men are to be found.

Orator—Who has done most to rouse the working classes?
Heckler—The inventor of alarm clocks.

A little three-year-old was interested in seeing chickens fed for the first time and asked what the chickens were saying as they ate. They are saying, "thank you," exclaimed his hostess. Afterward he commented: "I liked the way the hens said thank you, but I didn't like the way the rooster laughed."

Among the High-ups
Old King Cole was a merry old soul.
His joy was at its height.
When he found his name would let him claim
Kinship with anthracite.

A man has found a way to keep the same hat fresh every year.
"Your hat seems to be good every year and yet it is the same hat, isn't it? How do you do it?" asked a friend of this man.
"Easy enough," was the answer. "For two years running I had it blocked and cleaned and then, last spring when it looked a bit seedy, I exchanged it in a hotel for one that was entirely new."

Scorns Nephew Suicide Theory

"Countess" Vivia Jeanne Lamar, former actress and boxing title claimant, told police in Lancaster, Calif., she doubted her nephew, Gustave M. Van Hatten, 26, whom she had reared, had committed suicide. His skeleton and a hunting rifle were found near her desert home. "People hated us," she told sheriff's deputies. She is shown above as she was granted a boxer's license in Texas several years ago.

UNION CENTER
Union Center, Nov. 8.—The Ladies' Aid of the Chapel cleared $80 on the supper and fancy booth fair given recently.

Basketball Orders Pile Up

That there will be a crowded house for the Colonial-New York Jewels game tomorrow night at the municipal auditorium is indicated by the way fans are calling for reserved seats. Attorney N. LeVan Haver, Jack Feye, restaurateur, and Matthew H. Herzog, hardware dealer, three of the local residents for bringing American League ball back to Kingston, smile as they check over the list of customers. Tomorrow's game is an exhibition in preparation for the league opening here on the 16th. Starting time is 9 o'clock instead of the later hour previously announced.

Play Here Tomorrow Night

When the New York Jewels play the Colonials in that exhibition game at the municipal auditorium, Wednesday night, these three will figure in the battle for the visitors. Honey Russell, veteran cager, will direct the movement of the club from the bench and even get into the fray if necessary. Sammy Kaplan will be in there on the defensive and Willie Rubenstein will try to build up the Jewels' total with his sensational shots.

White Eagles Open Racing Fans Have Season Tonight Final Fling Today

The White Eagles will open their basketball season tonight at 8:30 in the White Eagle Hall, meeting St. Joseph's Alumni of Poughkeepsie.

The lineup for the Eagles will be Cullum, Gilday, Kelly, Rhymer, Kenneth, Janasiewicz, Duboltz, Argulewicz and the Tatarski brothers.

St. Joseph's will be represented by Andy Streck, Steve Waryancz, Steve Babicz, Lou Demmer, Gene Wullich, Joe Inpert, Julie Lezom and Toe Kamper.

The preliminary game will start at 7:30 featuring the Forst Packers and the Blackbirds. Dancing will follow the contests to the music of Tommy's orchestra.

Comforter Dartball

The Comforter dartball team will meet the Saugerties-Clister group at the Comforter Hall tonight, beginning at 8 o'clock. All Comforter players are asked to arrive on time. Refreshments will be served after the games.

BASEBALL GETS TWO NEW MANAGERS

Appointment of new managers for both the St. Louis Cards and the Browns resulted in new jobs for the two men shown above, though Fred Haver (left) is the only one who will actually work in the Missouri city. Honey, manager of the Toledo Mudhens for the past two years, got a one-year contract to manage the Browns. Billy Southworth (right), 44, will manage the Rochester team of the International League, a member of the Cardinal farm system. The opening was left by the transfer of Ray Blades from the Rochester to the Cardinals. Southworth had been pilot of the Memphis team in the Southern association.

Kelly's Corner

Heurich Brewers Are In—

No Fights Friday

By Joe Kelly

The Heurich Brewers of Washington are in the American Basketball League now. . . . This announcement came from President John J. O'Brien today. . . . Addition of the quintet from the nation's capital will not alter the schedule. Each club will play its 18 games. . . . Efforts are being made to procure Tom Kennedy as referee for the Jewels-Clinton exhibition tomorrow. . . . The matter hasn't been definitely settled. . . . New starting time is 9 o'clock instead of 9:15. . . . Vince Sempervino is in tip top shape for his coming bouts, writes Tommy Zander, New York. . . . They room together in the metropolis. . . . All the arguments are over radio programs. . . . Tommy likes the hillbilly numbers. . . . Vince goes for the jam sessions. . . . And, speaking of jam sessions, he and Pats should put on a real one on Monday night, November 14, for five rounds or less, according to their punching power.

Armstrong will defend his lightweight crown in February. . . . Hurricane Lou Ambers, the ex-champ, will be the challenger. . . . Ralph Heikkinen, Michigan guard, took a place in your little black book as all-American material. . . . James Robertson, Dixie's now leather champ from Alabama, will be around New York in the spring. . . . Watch out, you 127-pounders. . . . Irv Van Kleeck, the amateur who gave Mario Severino a run for the laurels in the Diamond Belt tourney at Albany a year ago, is bound for a ring comeback.

The Kingston Y. M. C. A. badminton players are due for a practice match in Poughkeepsie Wednesday. . . . All players and those desiring to play this game should report at the "Y" Thursday nights. . . . Arrangements are being made to have the county open Monday and Friday nights instead of Tuesday and Friday. . . . Chuck Henko has limbered up and conditioning exercises in the gym Mondays and Fridays from 5 to 6 p. m. . . . Games follow the workouts. . . . Handball, paddle ball, paddle tennis, badminton and volleyball are on the slate. . . . The Church Basketball League got off to a nice start last night. . . . Tonight, the cage now opens for the season at White Eagle Hall, with Billy Tesdo's team playing St. Joseph's Alumni of Poughkeepsie.

Miss Iles to Star At Victory Ball

DOROTHY ILES

One of the featured acts of an all-star program of seven big acts scheduled for the 20th Annual Victory Ball of Kingston Post, American Legion, at the Municipal Auditorium Friday evening, is Miss Dorothy Iles.

The description "prima-donna" generally pictures a woman of more or less maturity, as a novelty, Miss Iles is slated for that role, despite her youth. Miss Iles is a personable young lady of but 15 years whose beautiful voice has already caused her to be featured as soloist with the St. Louis Opera Co. Only recently she was chosen from a group of over 500 contestants to be sent to Hollywood in January to join the Paramount organization.

Supporting Miss Iles are six other acts including Bobby Bain and his original sextet of modern dancers. These artists have been winners of several contests in the Metropolitan area, including the Daily News Harvest Moon Ball and the Benny Goodman Swing Carnival. Others on the program include Benjie Stevens, Vince Monte, The Magnific, Silver Seltos and "Senator" Ford.

"Senator" Ford is the only monologist of his type in existence and his act is a continual recitation of the assertion that audiences are not up to what the little "Theater" group calls the "ambler number." It is doubtful if any other person on the stage tonight can do with an audience what he does with his audience continually. His "Will Rogers" type of talking makes a hit with an audience.

'Very Happy'—Roosevelt

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt is "very happy" over news that the King and Queen of Great Britain will visit this country next year after their Canadian tour, a statement from the temporary White House said today. In response to inquiries and in anticipation of an announcement from the throne by King George VI, the President's office issued the following statement: "The President is very happy to know that the King and Queen of Great Britain hope to be able to accept his invitation to visit the United States next summer. While no definite plans have been made, it is expected that their majesties will be able to stay in this country for four or five days."

Held for Petit Larceny

Joseph Oetzel, 62, of Jackson Heights, L. I., who gave his occupation as a restaurant man, was arrested Monday by Sergeant John Hopkins of the State Police at Ellenville and taken before Judge M. D. Schoonmaker at Ellenville where a hearing was held on a petit larceny charge. Oetzel was fined $25 or 25 days in jail and also given 60 days in the county jail. It was stated that Oetzel had taken a cow from a town of Wawarsing resident which he butchered and sent to New York to be made up in corned beef and bologna.

Faces Murder Charges

Pondra, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP)—Veron Egnor, 22, faced today first degree murder charges in connection with the shooting slaying of Laura Hazzard, his 11-year-old school sweetheart. The youth, arrested shortly after the girl was killed while walking to school in Amsterdam yesterday, was held for action of the Montgomery county grand jury. He was committed to the county jail here after an arrest by Detective Alfred M. Van Lipp. District Attorney Charles A. Tracey quoted Egnor as saying he had "determined to kill the girl" if he "could not have her."

Against Third Term

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Mrs. David Gray, aunt of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, returned from Europe today with the comment that she did not believe President Roosevelt would seek a third term. "I hope and pray he will not," she said. "It's a hard job for any man."

Autos and Steel Score New Highs

Wall street displayed bullish tendencies Monday with the idea that no matter how election went stocks will stand to gain. Expectations of major gains by the Republicans will, if they come through, be regarded as reassuring to investors. Should the expected gains in Republican circles fall Wall Street felt that perhaps inflation would be encouraged and, disastrous as that would be, Wall Street felt the interest in equity would be maintained.

General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Steel and Bethlehem, all old favorites, were four of 88 issues to score new highs for the year. Aviation issues were strong on the President's statement on rearmament and expectations that many major countries will devote an important part of its armament budget to air machines. Weekly statement of steel operations showed 61 per cent of capacity as compared to 56.8 last week.

Most active stock was General Motors, which declared a 75 cents dividend after the close as compared to 25 cents for each of the preceding quarters this year.

Northern Pacific Railway Company for September had a net income of $551,003, as compared with $795,719 in the 1937 month. Net loss of the first nine months was $7,125,966, compared with $2,081,662 in like period last year.

Grayhound Corporation for nine months ending September 30, reported net of $4,315,774, equal to $1.56 a share against $1.55 in similar period last year.

Directors of Coca-Cola International Corporation declared a year and dividend yesterday of $21.40 a share on common payable December 15. This was comparable to $21.50 year ago.

Continental Oil paid 25 cents dividend payable December 20.

International Nickel Company of Canada declared dividend of 50 cents payable December 31.

Standard Oil of Indiana declared dividend of 25 cents payable December 15.

Rondout Realty Corporation of Kingston has filed a certificate of incorporation stating that the corporation intends to operate as a general real estate agency. The capital stock is $20,000 to consist of 200 shares of common stock of a $100 par value. The principal office of the corporation is in Kingston and directors are Joseph Avis of 288 Wall street, Irene Smith of 62 Lafayette avenue and Rosalind Flynn of 78 Downs street, Kingston.

Modernized Circus Atlanta, Nov. 8 (AP)—A modernized circus, air-conditioned, color conscious and geared to swing time is the plan of John Ringling North, president of Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey. Labor troubles which closed the big show last June 22 have been ironed out, North said, and already plans are underway for next year's return to the road.

Drum Corps Contest Thirty-two cups, including three of gold (one 29 inches high) and 11 medals will be awarded prize winners at the first annual drum corps competition and military ball to be staged by Rudolph Trowbridge Squadron 73 of the new Monticello High School gymnasium Saturday evening, November 19. Approximately 35 of the leading drum corps organizations in this section of the state, including Beacon, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Middletown and Kingston, are expected to compete.
